

LOMITA CONTEST FAN WINS $1000 FUR COAT

It was only the beginning! A Lomita woman, Mrs. A. L. Ivester by name, won a paltry $10 by appearing on a radio show called "House Party" and telling of her all-Irish wedding. The story was duly recorded, with cut, in this newspaper.

Later on in the week, Mrs. Ivester picked up a few articles on another give-away drama called "Meet the Mrs."

Last week, already a veteran contest fan, Mrs. Ivester made her fourth trip to the studios. She came home the winner of: (1) a $1000 fur coat; (2) a washing machine; (3) an electric range; (4) a plane trip with reservations to Minneapolis, all expenses paid, to pick up the fur piece; (5) a string of pearls; (6) various other articles including cigarettes (the kind that the red and blue bell boy consistently calls for), doll, cosmetics, etc. who reside at 1801, 256th street, were due to arrive home this morning from the plane trip, bearing the fur coat, albeit a little worn for May.

Battling 750 as they say in baseball circles with three appearances plus prizes for four journeys to radio studios, Mrs. Ivester hit the jackpot on the "Queen for a Day" with a verse, delineating the precise reasons why she needed the brand of washing machine that the program gives away.

Woman's Club Urging Union To Take Action

Claiming that "San Pedro shoppers in increasing numbers are forced to go out of town in order to purchase many of even common necessities," the Woman's Club of San Pedro have urged the San Pedro Central Labor Council and the Retail Clerks Union to correct the existing "deplorable situation" in the Harbor area. The charges plus a petition to the labor group were contained in a resolution received by Harry M. Carr, Chairman of the San Pedro Committee for Civic Betterment from the Woman's Club of San Pedro.

CORRECTIONS NEEDED

The women's group in their resolution signed by Mrs. Roy Becker, president, listed a few things that needed correction: 1. The action placing 18 merchants in the Harbor area on the "unfair to organized labor" list by the Central Labor Council;

2. The fact that many of the better San Pedro stores had been forced to go out of business during the past year; 3. The fact that the shopping situation in San Pedro is going from bad to worse. The women's club's resolution called on the Central Labor Council to reconsider and cancel its action. It further urged the rank and file of the Retail Clerks Union to get rid of "the undesirables" within their union.

The women's group urged all San Pedro shoppers, particularly the housewives of the area, to join in this protest to the Central Labor Council and the Retail Clerks Union. They denounced the "highhanded and dictatorial policies which are slowly but surely strangling the commercial and retail trade of our city."

NOT ATTACKING UNION

According to Mr. Carr, his committee has been notified that further resolutions supporting his civic betterment program will be forthcoming. Carr emphasized that his organization is not attacking the Retail Clerks' Local 905 or any labor union organization. "The San Pedro Committee for Civic Betterment insists that the retail clerks set their house in order and become a respected, responsible organization. We believe it possible for them to establish fair and reasonable contracts that can be lived up to meticulously by all parties to the contract."

Supervisor Not Allowed To Pass Vote If Present

Individual members of the Board of Supervisors, if present at meetings, must vote on every question, under the law, a member present who does not vote has his vote recorded as "yes."

This was an interpretation given Chairman Raymond V. Darby today by the county counsel, who held:

"Every member present when a motion is put shall in an audible voice vote for or against the same. When a member does not vote in an audible voice, his vote shall be recorded as 'yes.'"

In the past the Board has been tied with a two-two vote, the fifth member "passing," or declining to vote.
